Answer ALL the Guiding Questions. You will turn in written answers to the guiding questions.

ASSIGNMENT: You will be required and expected to have read the U.S. Constitution using the guiding questions. The course will be referencing specific articles, sections, and clauses.

PART 2

REQUIRED --Watch the first five episodes of the first season of The West Wing. (required)

Episode 1: The Pilot

Episode 2: Post Hoc, Ergo Propter Hoc

Episode 3: A Proportional Response

Episode 4: Five Votes Down

Episode 5: The Crackpots and These Women

The West Wing is available through stream on HBO Max (They offer a free trial for seven days, usually), for purchase on Amazon, YouTube, iTunes. You can find the DVD at the Daphne public library, as well. If you and a parent have a Fairhope library membership card, then the Fairhope library will get it from Daphne for you. You can probably watch it with a friend who is also registered for the class. You and a parent must have a library card if you are not 18 yrs. old.

- The West Wing character guide is available below the Summer Assignment to become more familiar with the main characters and their roles.

- List each of the first five episodes and then include a summary of the relevant plot element(s) of the episode and of constitutional articles and amendments, clauses, and sections most relevant to each episode.

- Example:
 - Episode 9: The Short List –
 - The episode includes a scene focused on Article 2, Section 2, Clause 2 dealing with the President's power to appoint federal judges including the U.S. Supreme Court and seeking the advice and consent of the U.S. Senate for judicial appointments.
- Example:
 - Episode 11: Lord John Marbury –
 - The episode includes a scene illustrating Article 2, Section 3, Clause 4 dealing with the President's responsibility in receiving ambassadors and Article 2, Section 2, Clause 1 dealing with the President's role as Commander-in-Chief.

- Write in complete sentences. All responses should take the form of grammatically correct sentences that express complete thoughts reflective of AP-level writing and reasoning ability.
 - All responses must be handwritten. No typed work will be accepted
 - Write your name in the upper right corner of the paper.
- These episodes will be referenced during the course. We will also watch additional episodes throughout the semester.

PART 3 OPTIONAL

- Watch the first ten episodes of Season 2 of Parks and Recreation.
 - You are encouraged to watch additional episodes, especially if you enjoy the series.
- Parks and Recreation is available through stream on Peacock, stream and/or purchase on Xfinity OnDemand, for purchase on Amazon, YouTube, and iTunes, and probably check out at a public library.
- Additional shows to watch (optional): Designated Survivor and Madame Secretary.

To earn credit for the summer assignment, you must complete all required parts.

The assignment is due on the first day of school. No partial credit will be given for late work. Do not wait until the last minute to check the public library for the West Wing DVD or it may not be available.

1. Your work should be handwritten. Most work in this AP course is handwritten; Your handwriting should be legible. Only write on the front of a sheet of college-ruled notebook paper. We only write in dark blue and black ink. Again, to receive full credit, only write in dark blue and black ink. I can tell a lot about a student by how well they follow directions and by the effort to put into the summer assignment.
2. Your responses to each assignment and/or question should be original (in your own words). Copying from any source will result in an automatic zero. Answers should be in complete sentences unless a student creates a neat chart or diagram to categorize the information. If an item says to LIST, students may use bullet points. Otherwise, we ALWAYS use complete sentences.
3. This packet (and all sheets of notebook paper you use to complete the assignments) is due the first day of school. Place all work in a file folder or pocket folder with your first and last name and class period on the folder.

The West Wing was a dramatic television series based on the inner workings of a fictional presidential administration. The show focused primarily on the duties of the president's White House staff. The President was designated as a supporting character for the show's purposes but is without a doubt the series' main point of interest. The series uses the President's supporting staff to address various political, social, and sometimes personal issues encountered by a presidential administration.

President Josiah Bartlet – The popular Democratic president from New Hampshire. He was raised Catholic and briefly considered to become a priest. He studied at the University of Notre Dame and eventually became a Nobel Laureate in Economics. He served in the House of Representatives before becoming New Hampshire's governor. He is described as the ideal president with a realistic approach, compassion, integrity, and warmth. He promotes a liberal agenda in his policies.

Leo McGarry – Bartlet's White House Chief of Staff and best friend. He is an authoritative figure among the senior staff, acting like a father figure in some cases. He is the one most responsible for inspiring Bartlet's run for president. He served in the U.S. Air Force and served as Secretary of Labor in previous years. He is very politically connected and well-respected among top government officials, even from the Republican Party.

Josh Lyman – The White House Deputy Chief of Staff and protégé of Leo McGarry. He is very self-confident, but arrogant. He is well-versed in the art of politics and promotes a liberal agenda. He is an idealist, but will limit his means of persuasion for the sake of the administration. He is a strong supporter of Bartlet since he believes Bartlet stands up to his principles.

Toby Ziegler – The White House Communications Director. He advises on the administration's responses to issues and events, including writing speeches, advising the Press Secretary, and conducting meetings with the media and other groups. He also is the administration's domestic policy advisor. He is passive-aggressive and stubborn on his principles.

C.J. Cregg – The White House Press Secretary. She handles the duties of delivering the administration’s press releases to the media and public. She demonstrates a rigid and witty confidence and holds her own among the media and the rest of the male-dominated senior staff.

Sam Seaborn – The White House Deputy Communications Director. He is Toby Ziegler’s right-hand man. He is an exceptional speechwriter on par with the likes of Toby. Like many of the Bartlet staff, he is an idealist with a strong sense of faith in the American political process. He also has tremendous principles which he believes rise above all else, even if it means costing the administration politically.

Will Bailey – The White House Deputy Communications Director. He replaces Sam Seaborn in the series when Sam runs for a House seat in California. He is quite capable of performing up to his responsibilities, but eventually pursues other endeavors such as the Vice-President’s Chief of Staff. He does become well-respected among the other senior staffers.

Charlie Young – Personal Aide to the President. He becomes somewhat of a de facto gatekeeper for the president toward his staff and a personal confidant to Bartlet. The relationship between Charlie and Bartlet is a strong father-son bond.

Abigail Bartlet – The First Lady. She is Bartlet’s loyal and witty wife. She is an accomplished physician and is mother to Bartlet’s three daughters. She wholeheartedly supports her husband and her President. In some cases, she is his best advisor.

Senator Arnold Vinick – A Republican senator from California running for president after Bartlet’s administration. He is a social moderate and a fiscal conservative. Described as a maverick, he earns popularity by being very direct with his principles. He is a proponent of limited government conservatism and is reluctant to embrace the Religious Right. He is popular among conservatives, independents, and conservative Democrats.

Representative Matthew Santos – A Democrat representative from Texas running for president after Bartlet’s administration. He promotes liberal policies, both socially and fiscally. His major campaign agenda is education. Josh Lyman admires his passion and integrity as it reminds him of his admiration for President Bartlet.

Vice-President Bob Russell – The current Vice-President under Bartlet running for president after Bartlet’s administration. He served as a representative from Colorado before being named to replace John Hoynes as Vice-President by Bartlet, though he was not Bartlet’s first choice. He has been criticized for his connections to the mining industry. He becomes the early frontrunner in the campaign to succeed Bartlet.

John Hoynes – The former Vice-President under Bartlet running for president after Bartlet’s administration. He formerly served as a Democratic senator from Texas before being selected as Bartlet’s running mate. He resigned as Bartlet’s Vice-President when his extramarital affair and national security leak was publicly exposed. He recovered his status and became a second or third possibility to succeed Bartlet in the Democratic primaries. He is a moderate Democrat with the most political experience among Russell and Santos.
